

“Roger Grunwald has taken a little-known piece of Holocaust history and transformed it into an emotionally searing presentation... The audience does not emerge unscathed but is left to face a set of emotional complexities that cannot be dismissed.”

The Mitzvah Project is a combination of theatre, history lesson and conversation in which actor, playwright and the child of a Holocaust survivor, Roger Grunwald, explores the shocking history of the tens of thousands of men who were forced to serve in Hitler’s military. The one-person play, The Mitzvah, reveals that history through the tragic story of Christoph Rosenberg, a half-Jewish lieutenant who served in the German army.
