AMERICANS ARE DIVIDED ON HOW THE U.S. SHOULD DEAL WITH IRAN.

An action or policy we take impacts current conflicts in the Middle East, long term relations with allies such as Saudi Arabia, Israel, Iraq, Afghanistan, and the balance of power between us and Russia. Both the U.S. and Iran are societies with complex government structures and populations with widely divergent views. This makes creating a mutually accepted policy for U.S.-Iranian relations extremely challenging.

TRITA PARSI, PHD, is an Iranian born Swedish citizen and permanent resident of the U.S., has been writing and speaking about these issues for years. He is the founder of the National Iranian American Council, author of five books on U.S. and Iran, 2010 recipient of the Grawemeyer Award for Ideas Improving World Order as well as numerous awards for his books. He also regularly authors articles, and appears on TV to commentate on foreign policy. Parsi has worked for the Swedish Permanent Mission to the UN, taught International Relations at Johns Hopkins University SAIS, served as a scholar at the Middle East Institute, and been a Policy Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington DC.
